Policy on Victims of Crime

The mission of the Maine Department of Corrections is to hold the offender accountable to the victim and community, to prevent crime and reduce the likelihood of juvenile and adult offenders re-offending.

A person who is the victim of a crime is entitled to certain basic rights: to be treated with dignity and respect, to be free from intimidation, to be assisted by criminal justice agencies and to be informed about the criminal justice system.

The Department of Corrections strives to ensure that victims who request notification will be notified of a prisoner's release, victims receive the restitution to which they are entitled, and are free from harassment from offenders in the custody of, or under the supervision of the department.

The department provides a toll free number, 800 968-6909 for victims to receive information regarding an offender's status.

The Department of Corrections encourages the participation of crime victims on the department's Victim Advisory Group and Victim Impact panels.

The Department of Corrections is committed to the premise that crime victims are the real customers of the department, and will receive the rights and respect to which they are entitled.

This handbook may not answer all questions you have regarding the correctional system in Maine. You are urged to call the resources listed at the end of the book and also to access our web site at www.state.me.us/doc. We welcome your interest in the Department of Corrections as we strive to make communities safer and deal with the concerns of victims in a responsive manner.

INTRODUCTION

Maine's successful response to crime is grounded in an understanding that safety for citizens is a fundamental role of government. The Maine Department of Corrections (MDOC) is a state agency responsible for Maine's prisons and probation-parole services. Together with law enforcement agencies, courts, juvenile justice agencies, victims of crime and communities, the MDOC plays an integral role in our State's justice system.

The federal and state constitutions guarantee specific rights for individuals who commit crime. The Maine Legislature, representing all citizens, establishes public policy for the justice system. Our State's justice system balances the rights of crime victims with the offender's rights and safety for all. The Department of Corrections provides public safety consistent with those rights.

Offenders sentenced to prison are punished with loss of liberty. With structure and discipline, offenders experience the consequences of crime. Through prison programs, inmates can learn how crime impacts others and develop skills to contribute as law-abiding, productive members of society. Loss of liberty and opportunities for change combine to help deter current and former inmates from committing new crimes with new victims.

The MDOC is committed to keeping interested victims and survivors informed with appropriate information about the status of the offender. Many victims of crime, and other citizens, have questions about life "behind the walls." To help answer those questions, this handbook is available to provide information about changes in the life of offenders sentenced to prison in Maine.

Additional information about the Maine Department of Corrections is available on the World Wide Web www.state.me.us/corrections

MISSION STATEMENT

It is the mission of the Department of Corrections to hold the offender accountable to the victim and community and to prevent crime and reduce the likelihood of juvenile and adult offenders re-offending.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES

Implementation of the department's mission will be guided by six principles:

Risk Management involves our informed judgment of the relative risk that an offender presents. Our decisions will be based on the best available information and risk assessment practices and will address the nature of controls and the amount of supervision needed in individual cases to reduce the likelihood that an offender will offend again.

Restorative justice challenges us to design and administer a system which places the needs of the victim and the harm done by the offending behavior at the center of the process by which we sanction and hold the offender accountable.

Risk focused intervention focuses our assessment practices and intervention actions on those risk factors that exist in the individual or his environment which if changed will reduce the likelihood that an offender will offend again.

Prevention is our moral and professional obligation. We will promote, support and facilitate prevention activities by working with families and communities to address those factors which put children at risk and to protect children from those risks.

Applied research, what we know works and doesn't work will inform all our policies, the programs we develop and implement, and the decisions we make. We are committed on an ongoing basis to evaluating and measuring our programs' effectiveness.

Quality service is our ongoing commitment and will only be achieved through clearly articulated goals and strategies informed by staff's experiences and research and supported by training.

NATIONAL ACCREDITATION

The American Correctional Association (ACA) establishes national standards for the safe operation of prisons and probation-parole services. With its commitment to quality, the Maine Department of Corrections has applied for accreditation from the ACA and the Commission on Accreditation for Corrections. This will certify that our facilities and programs meet or exceed the national standards. Every 3 years, the Department will enter a re-accreditation process to assure a professional and humane enterprise – with competent management, trained staff, and quality facilities and programs.

SAFETY & SECURITY FIRST

Each day of an offender's time in prison is lived with one essential principle in place, the safety of the public, MDOC employees, and other prison inmates must be assured at all times. A safe and secure environment is an essential ingredient for successfully controlling the loss of liberty for inmates.

All areas of prison operation address security needs. Prison buildings are designed to separate offenders when appropriate, yet encourage staff interaction with them. Classifying each inmate according to probable risk to the public and to others in the institution provides an objective method for assigning inmate housing and security levels. Movements throughout prison grounds are based on assigned security levels and are controlled at all times. Frequent searches and counts of each inmate help minimize unsafe activity. These and other procedures are important elements in assuring safety 24 hours per day, 365 days per year.

A significant requirement for providing safety and security is a well-trained, highly professional team of corrections employees. The uniformed and non-uniformed personnel of the MDOC are committed to achieving the department's mission with the values of integrity, respect and professionalism. The knowledge and skills of staff are enhanced through intensive pre-service and in-service training programs with the Maine Criminal Justice Academy Council. Throughout their career in corrections, our employees are expected to be role models for inmates as they contribute to the safe, secure and humane management of offenders “behind the walls.”

KEEPING VICTIMS INFORMED & INVOLVED

Maine law provides crime victims with important rights throughout the justice system (see “Crime Victims’ Rights”). During the criminal investigation, court and corrections phases, Victim-Witness Advocates promote a compassionate approach to participation by victims. Crisis centers throughout the State provide advocacy and support for individuals and families experiencing domestic and sexual violence. In partnership with other agencies, the Maine Department of Corrections is committed to respecting and supporting the rights and needs of crime victims.

The MDOC strives to keep victims and survivors informed and involved. Before sentencing, the Victim Witness Advocates invite victims to submit victim impact statements. Along with other information, the Court will consider the physical, emotional and financial impact of crime on the victim and family. When ordered by the Court, the MDOC collects restitution from offenders for victims who experience economic losses from crime.

When offenders are sentenced to prison, a victim of a murder or a Class A, B, C crime for which the person is sentenced to institutional confinement may request notification of release from the Department of Corrections. The victim must receive notice of that person’s release and discharge from institutional confinement upon the expiration of the sentence and must receive notice of any conditional release of the person from institutional confinement, including probation, parole, furlough, overnight release, work release, intensive supervision, supervised community confinement, aftercare, therapeutic leave or similar program if the victim so requests. This request may be made through the Victim-Witness Advocate or directly to the Department of Corrections. Additional information and support is available through the MDOC Victim Services Coordinator at (800) 968-6909. Personal information provided by victims is confidential and cannot be accessed by the inmate.

Parole was abolished in Maine in 1976, however there are a few remaining offenders who were sentenced under the old law. Upon request, victims and survivors may provide input to the Parole Board prior to its decision about an inmate’s release. Victims may attend the parole hearing accompanied by an advocate and may choose to talk to Board members without the inmate present. Victims may also submit a written statement for the Board to consider regarding the inmate’s release.

Through the Maine Department of Human Services, victims of certain violent crimes are entitled to know the results of inmate tests for HIV/AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome). Requests for this information must be submitted to the District Attorney’s Victim-Witness Advocate.

Victims experiencing intimidation, threats or harassment by inmates will have their concerns addressed promptly by the MDOC. Such inmates are subject to disciplinary action and criminal prosecution as appropriate. When inmates initiate unwelcome contact, victims are encouraged to inform the Victim Services Coordinator at 800 968-6909.

Consistent with its mission and values, the MDOC continues to strengthen its support for victims and survivors of crime. Through collaboration with victims, advocates, and community organizations, MDOC programs can empower victims to resolve issues related to crime victimization. Offender accountability can be enhanced by improving offender understanding about the personal impact of crime upon victims and their families through the Impact of Crime program. Ongoing development of MDOC's victim services acknowledges the significant role of crime victims in the success of Maine's justice system.

VICTIMS' RIGHTS

In Maine, victims of A, B, and C crimes and survivors of murder are entitled to certain rights under the law, some of which can be found in: (17-A M.R. S. A. Section 1175).

Victims of Crime are entitled to the following basic rights:

- To be treated with dignity and respect throughout the criminal justice process.
- To be assisted by criminal justice agencies.
- To be informed about the criminal justice system.
- Whenever practicable, to be notified of plea agreements, and the right to comment on them.
- Whenever practicable, to be notified of all judicial proceedings, including time and place of trial.
- Whenever practicable, to be notified of the proposed dismissal or filing of a complaint, information, or indictment before the action is taken.
- To have input at sentencing.
- To request restitution.
- To request compensation for the Victim Compensation Board for unreimbursed medical and medically related expenses for victims of violent crimes upon request to the Department of Corrections
- To be notified of defendant's release from institutional confinement in all felony cases.
- To be provided with a pamphlet containing certain statutes that pertain to victim's rights.

SENTENCED TO TIME IN PRISON: WHAT'S NEXT?

After the sentencing hearing in court, crime victims are encouraged to consult with the Victim-Witness Advocate who was available during the court process. The Advocate can help explain the sentence and provide additional support with the victim or family (see "Keeping Victims Informed and Involved"). Victims may also contact the MDOC Victim Services Coordinator anytime during the offender's sentence, at (800) 968-6909 or 287-4385.

Upon order of the Court, new prisoners are transported by Sheriff deputies to the appropriate prison receiving facility (e.g. Maine Correctional Center in Windham or the Maine State Prison in Warren for offenders with sentences over 5 years). After arrival, the inmate is photographed, fingerprinted and given prison clothing and toiletries. All new inmates are placed in a reception area and are kept isolated, or “segregated,” from other prisoners until approved by prison staff for proper housing assignment.

During the approximately 30 days in reception status, inmates are interviewed and tested by a multidisciplinary team of prison staff. Inmates receive an orientation to prison rules and expectations, medical and dental exams, mental health assessment, religious and program orientation, and educational testing. The classification process begins to determine custody and housing assignment. After the diagnostic period is complete, the offender moves to a correctional housing unit with similarly classified inmates.

WHY CLASSIFY?

Prison staff, including a Classification Officer or Assistant Classification Officers and one Security member and one Administrative member, utilizes an objective method to safely maintain inmates by identifying their security and program needs. The classification process helps determine where inmates are housed and how they can successfully complete the prison sentence. During each year in prison, classification teams meet regularly to review the behavior, work performance and program participation by inmates.

Each inmate is rated according to several factors. These include public risk (security needs), institutional risk (custody needs), medical and health care needs, mental health needs, training and programming needs, substance abuse educational needs, education needs, vocational training needs, and work skills. With safety and security as priorities, risks to the public and the prison environment are always addressed first. Inmates who successfully transition from state prison to the community see their level of custody reduced as the release date approaches.

Based upon classification ratings, the custody levels include:

- High Risk Management: provides the highest degree of supervision and control. Inmates are locked in their cells approximately 23 hours daily with limited time for exercise within the living quarters.
- Close Custody: Limited activity beyond work or school hours, movement within the housing unit.
- Medium Custody: provides moderate lockdown time and greater movement inside the secure prison perimeter. Most inmates in Maine require medium security and make up the prison “general population.”
- Minimum Custody: includes reduced supervision and control while living and working on prison grounds outside the secure fence.
- Community Release: allows an inmate to reside in a Pre-Release Center and maintain gainful employment in the community during the final phase of incarceration.
- Supervised Community Confinement: inmates may also be confined at home, maintain employment and supervision by a Probation-Parole Officer, during the last year of their sentence.

CONTROL & DISCIPLINE

Movement within prison is strictly regulated. All living quarters and program areas include a number of locked doors or gates with access controlled by Correctional Officers. When directed by uniformed or non-uniformed staff, inmates may move under the following circumstances:

- ❑ Scheduled – mass movements to the dining hall, work sites, appointments or special events.
- ❑ Staff Escort – individual movement under constant control of staff.
- ❑ Pass – a written movement pass issued by staff is required for all inmates moving on prison grounds for non-scheduled or unescorted activities. The pass must be presented to staff when the inmate arrives at the approved destination and returns to the point of departure.

To assure accountability for all inmates, census checks are conducted regularly each day. Multiple scheduled and unscheduled counts verify the presence of all inmates at work, school, or other activities under staff supervision.

Unauthorized or altered items jeopardize prison safety. Illegal contraband may be passed to inmates by visitors or otherwise produced by inmates. Searches and inspections occur frequently to maintain safety and ensure compliance with rules against contraband. All inmates are subject to random drug and alcohol screens. Without notice, searches on prison grounds include visual inspections, pat (clothing) searches, strip searches, body cavity searches and cell searches. Prison visitors and vehicles are also subject to search at any time and violators may be prosecuted for illegal activity.

To manage safe and secure facilities, there are many rules that inmates must follow throughout their time in prison. Each inmate is informed of these rules upon admission. In general, prison rules address all areas of prison life related to inmate behavior, property, activities, and interaction with others.

Inmates who break the rules are subject to discipline intended to teach accountability. Sanctions can include loss of “good time,” disciplinary (punitive) segregation, cell restriction, extra duty (work) hours, and suspension of privileges, including visitations. Under some circumstances, the inmate may be segregated “pending administrative review.” Although separated from other inmates, all offenders in segregation have access to health care, exercise and limited items and services that do not jeopardize safety.

Inmates are entitled to an impartial hearing about alleged rules infractions. At MDOC hearings, inmates have an opportunity to rebut the allegations, present evidence and question witnesses. Based upon the facts presented, the hearing officer makes a finding (guilty or not guilty) and may award formal disciplinary sanctions as appropriate.

Disciplinary infractions impact a number of areas of an inmate's prison life. Sanctions effect classification and custody levels and can extend the length of time an inmate must stay behind the secure perimeter, up to the maximum term ordered by the Court. Remaining discipline free for a specified length of time is a requirement for admission or continuation in certain programs, including each level of reduced custody.

PRISON HOUSING

The buildings where inmates live vary in design and size. National accreditation standards provide reasonable guidelines for safe and secure living quarters in prison. Public and institutional safety and medical needs determine where each inmate is assigned to live. Depending upon custody level and program participation, an inmate may live in a locked cell or in a dormitory style room with other prisoners. A Unit Manager directs all activities in each housing area. Uniformed Correctional Officers provide security and supervision through regular interaction with the inmates. Correctional Caseworkers within each housing unit provide program direction and classification reviews as inmates' progress through their time in prison.

Security or other considerations may require incarcerating inmates in another state's prison. These inmates must follow all rules and regulations of the other facility. However, decisions about custody levels or release remain with the Maine Department of Corrections.

Each prisoner must wear an identification card and prison clothing at all times. Good personal hygiene is required. Cells and dormitory rooms must be clean and are subject to searches at any time. Wall decorations must not be vulgar, sexually suggestive or promote the use of alcohol or drugs.

Inmates have limited access to telephones. As part of the daily schedule, they may make collect calls to anyone who will accept the toll charges on pre-approved phone lists. Any inmate who uses the telephone to threaten, harass or intimidate others (e.g. victims or witnesses) will be disciplined and/or criminally charged. Through available technology, the MDOC can "block" specific telephone numbers from being dialed to prevent further incidents. Victims and others who receive unwelcome contact from inmates are encouraged to inform the prison Warden or the MDOC Victim Services Coordinator at (800) 968-6909 or 287-4385.

Inmates who are not in disciplinary segregation may own one radio and television set (purchased through the prison canteen). Like other privileges, access to these items may be limited or items may be removed for periods of time as a means of disciplining inmates for inappropriate behavior.

Inmates are encouraged to solve problems by communicating with staff through proper channels. Discussion with a staff member in the housing unit is the first step to having inmate questions answered or needs met. If the unit staff cannot address it, the inmate is instructed to submit a written request. The appropriate responsible staff member will then respond to the inmate's issues. When issues are not otherwise resolved, a written grievance may be submitted to the Warden and Commissioner.

PRISON LABOR

Unless medically unable, inmates are encouraged to work or attend school while in prison. Prisoners are required to perform upkeep to their living areas but are not mandated to work jobs. Generally, inmates work morning or afternoon shifts. Each prison is a self-contained facility requiring an infrastructure not unlike any community. Laundry, kitchen, general maintenance, and industries are some of the areas where inmate labor is required.

As time in prison can be an opportunity for offenders to improve themselves before returning to the community, efforts are made to assign jobs based upon inmate skills and job training needs. All jobs are determined by the offender's security classification, needs of the institution and the inmate. Inmate labor is supervised and evaluated by uniformed or non-uniformed MDOC staff.

Inmates do not receive "cash" for their work. Each month's wages are credited to the inmate's account and are used to purchase essential products or other items from the prison canteen. Inmates are required to buy their own personal hygiene items with their earnings over and above what is minimally provided by the facility.

Once assigned to a housing unit, base pay for prison work is $0.50 daily. Inmates who succeed at certain skilled jobs may be eligible for gradual increases, up to $2.65 daily after 18 months. No inmate is paid for more than one job. Inmates who are disciplined for certain behaviors receive "reduced pay status" and are not allowed recreational activities beyond the housing unit.

Every 30 days, the work supervisor evaluates the inmate's attitude, work habits, and performance at the work site. This performance report is considered in the determination of the awarding of good time during future reviews by classification staff, the Parole Board, or the Court.

OPPORTUNITY FOR CHANGE

Keeping the public safe is the chief role of Maine's prisons. Time in prison shows offenders that their actions result in serious consequences. They have lost their freedom, are required to work, and must pay a number of costs associated with incarceration (see "Is Prison A Free Ride?"). Keeping prisoners well occupied is an important ingredient for maintaining safe and effective prisons. Leaving prison with productive skills, and lessons learned about the impact of crime, can help deter former inmates from committing new crimes with new victims.

Time in prison can be an opportunity to learn. Education and skills can be improved in school, in vocational training, and in programs that teach inmates they must change their behavior by making responsible choices. These programs are designed to return ex-offenders to the community as law-abiding citizens who accept personal responsibility for their actions.

EDUCATION

When entering prison, most inmates do not have a high school diploma. National research shows that inmates with the least education are the most likely to return to prison. Inmates completing educational programs are much less likely to return. Those under 21 will be assigned to gain their GED under the law.

High School & GED Preparation

The MDOC Corrections Special School District, established in 1999, includes a complete high school diploma program. Inmates may earn credits toward school graduation from our Program. Our faculty also provides special education services to eligible students.

The educational programs operate academic quarters throughout the year. Inmate students may work on basic skills acquisition in reading, writing and mathematics. They may also study and complete the GED exam, although they are encouraged to complete the diploma program. While programming varies between locations, academic courses are similar to those taught in public schools. Small group formats and independent studies are also available.

Educational Support & Library Services

Achievement testing (e.g. math, reading, language use and spelling) is offered to all inmates to assist in determining appropriate program and course placement. Academic guidance, program advisement and resource room academic support are also available. Consistent with state and federal law, special education services are offered for inmates determined eligible for such services prior to incarceration. Inmates not eligible for special education services are offered appropriate academic supports and services to assist them with their studies. Each prison library supports inmate studies and provides reading materials, interlibrary loan and reference media. Access to legal reference materials is also available.

Post-Secondary Opportunities

Inmates may request approved correspondence courses from accredited institutions. The University of Maine at Augusta – Bath/Brunswick Campus and Southern Maine Community College/Nova Net deliver some post-secondary courses for inmates in Maine. Inmates must pay for all tuition and fees.

Maine Community Technical College is present at the facilities. Its educational programs emphasize sustained employability for inmates upon release from prison and offer some vocational post-secondary certificate courses for eligible inmates. Limited scholarships are available.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING AND INDUSTRIES

The Adult Vocational Training Center provides classroom and on-the-job laboratory training to enhance skills in several employment areas. Certificates are awarded for successful completion, with program length ranging from 1 to 2 years. While the type of vocational training may vary in each prison (see specific adult correctional facility program descriptions) some of the vocational programs that the MDOC offer are business technologies, auto body repair, auto mechanics, building trades, small engine repair, food service management, horticulture, information (data) processing, and technology education. These programs are certified by the ME Department of Education and earn participants credits toward a high school diploma.

Closely integrated with education and vocational training are work opportunities in the prison's Correctional Industries. While improving marketable job skills, inmates provide labor for the prison and goods and services for many public and non-profit organizations in Maine. Sales from the shops of Correctional Industries help pay for staff and inmate costs, as well as the purchase of materials. Profits are returned to the general fund of the State of Maine.

The following Correctional Industries shops produce and sell goods and services:

Plate Shop – motor vehicle license plates;

Farm – vegetables, cordwood;

Sign Shop – traffic & custom signs;

Tailor Shop – clothing & linen repair;

Print Shop – complete printing services;

Furniture Shop – office furniture & cabinets;

Wood Shop – custom-made products;

Data-Processing Shop – data bases, key punching, billing and inventory services;

Computer Refurbishing – hardware repair, web-site development;

Upholstery Shop

Fly-tying

TREATMENT PROGRAMS

Through the classification process, prison staff assess each offender's treatment needs. To successfully progress in prison, the inmate must actively participate in treatment as required by the Court or prison. A number of enrichment programs are also available to help address identified needs. The offender's classification level can affect eligibility for certain programs. All programs provide opportunities for offenders to learn how to change behavior.

ALCOHOL & DRUG ABUSE

National research shows most offenders have a history of alcohol or other drug abuse. Time in prison is an opportunity for inmates to receive information about the many impacts of addiction. They can learn skills needed to make appropriate choices upon release.

CORRECTIONAL RECOVERY ACADEMY

The Correctional Recovery Academy is a 1 year intensive treatment program that treats Level 4 and 5, men located within the prison system in Maine. The one year includes two steps. The first step is nine months and utilizes the Modified Therapeutic Community model, Cognitive Behavioral Therapy, as well as the DSAT (Differential Substance Abuse Treatment) model. It is a self-motivated program with emphasis on utilization, and support, of fellow community members for learning how to monitor and change behaviors. The program provides education about substance abuse, problem solving, individual responsibility, and civic responsibility.

During the 9 month step of the program the client works his way through three separate phases. Each client's phase level advancement is achieved through progress made, and observed, in classroom work and participation, attitude changes, ability to exhibit consistent positive change in attitude, behaviors, and impulse control, and by passing a rigorous written test that targets the client's knowledge of what he has learned through his classroom, group and one-on-one participation.

Phase I: All new clients who come into the program are automatically made a Phase I. During this phase they are considered in orientation. Each individual is assigned a mentor who is responsible for supplying the new Phase I with a copy of the Phase I Handbook, and works with the individual to help him gain an understanding of the new environment with all of its rules and regulations, and program expectations. They are kept somewhat separate from the other Phase clients for 4 to 6 weeks in order to give them the time to learn the community rules, schedule requirements, and program needs and behavior expectations. During these weeks the Phase I attends all scheduled classes and meetings, and participates in community job functions. When the staff feels that behaviorally the Phase I is ready for advancement to Phase 2, he is given the written test.

Phase II: Once a Phase II, the client can talk to all other Phases. There is a higher expectation for the Phase II to display appropriate behaviors and to role model the behaviors for new clients. Once a Phase II displays positive community interaction he will be able to become a mentor. The Phase II continues to attend all scheduled classes and meetings, and is eligible to be given work assignments, and hold Committee Leader positions. He will advance to Phase III when Staff feels that he is ready to take the Phase III test, and passes it. Advancement is determined by the individual's observed behaviors and interactions, not just by the written test.

Phase III: There is a higher expectation for a Phase III to engage in appropriate behaviors and interactions, and to role model positive behaviors. The Phase III continues to attend all scheduled classes and meetings. Once he has been made a Phase III, the client will be occasionally expected to teach a class. There are very high expectations placed on a Phase I to be a positive influence in the community. If a Phase III is minimum custody they are given a set of clothing to wear that sets them apart from the other Phases. The attitudes and behaviors that a Phase III exhibits determines whether he will be eligible to go on to the second step located at CMPRC in Hallowell.

Once an individual makes a Phase he can lose that Phase level if he engages in behaviors that are not considered appropriate behaviors for an individual who has made that Phase level.

Step II: The individual who is moved on to Transitional Recovery Academy, located at Central Maine Pre-Release Center in Hallowell, will be there for three months. On arrival he automatically goes into an orientation phase similar to the one at CRA. This is a time to learn the rules and regulations, and program expectations. They have the same sort of program requirements as those in the first step. Once out of orientation the individual works on DOC crews and can begin to seek employment. Their last few weeks are spent preparing for life on the outside which includes figuring out where they are going to go to, finding a place to live, and how they are going to support themselves financially. (Many of these issues begin to be addressed in the first step of their one year program at CRA.) Once a prisoner is evaluated and assessed as in need of this program, failure to complete it once started results in severe restriction of certain privileges.

OTHER SUBSTANCE ABUSE PROGRAMS

Several programs are available throughout the year to help inmates learn the consequences of addiction and to develop skills for recovery. Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous meet frequently. Classroom programs, television courses and relapse prevention groups are also available.

SEXUAL OFFENDERS

The MDOC has recently awarded an RFP for an institutional sexual offender treatment program that will be supported through federal funds. The timeline is such that the assessment phase of the program will begin in July of 2004 and the treatment phase will begin in January 2005. The program is a 30-bed 2-year intensive treatment program. The goal is to tie the institutional program to treatment services in the community thus allowing a smooth transition to the community and a continuum of treatment. The institutional program will be provided by The Counseling and Psychotherapy Center of Maine, which is a satellite program of a Boston based national provider of sexual offender assessment and treatment services. Sexual offenders will be selected for treatment based on a comprehensive assessment which focuses on both risk level and treatment responsivity, as well as, the length of their sentence.

PERSONAL IMPROVEMENT

Inmates are in prison for many reasons. Lost liberty is one consequence of their crime. Improving their ability to control behavior and their emotional reactions to various situations can increase the likelihood of success upon returning to the community. Several prison programs are available to teach effective ways to deal with difficult situations. Through personal enrichment, inmates are encouraged to change their behavior during their time in prison.

Enrichment programs vary in scope and availability. Opportunities are available for learning skills in anger management, problem-solving, marital relations, life skills, religion and alternatives to violence.

VOLUNTEER PROGRAMS

Volunteers have an important role in corrections. Within our agency, volunteers provide valuable services at each facility and district, by assisting inmates, probationers and parolees in self-development and by modeling community values. During incarceration, volunteer programs improve inmates' opportunities for self-improvement by providing:

Substance abuse education	Marriage and family enrichment
Spiritual growth	Health education
Literacy	Language interpreters
Recreation	Fitness
Victim awareness

With reasonable opportunities for all recognized faith groups, volunteers reinforce mainstream societal values. Our volunteer program encourages citizen participation, as well as inmate and staff volunteerism opportunities. We support inmate participation in community service for pre-employment skill building, decreased inmate idleness, and fostering good community relations.

The needs of men and women confined to prison change substantially when they move to community corrections facilities and are subsequently released on probation. They face many issues, including reintegration with the community, employment, renewal of family and social ties, and the stigma of being an ex-offender. By enhancing the individual's support network, volunteers provide a valuable service during the inmate's return to the community, including assistance with:

Locating housing	Pre-employment counseling and training
Life skills classes	Employment placement
Financial management	Family and social relationships
Victim awareness	Leisure activities
First Aid, CPR	Health, nutrition education
Community service projects	Substance abuse relapse prevention

RELIGIOUS SERVICES

Freedom of religion is a constitutional guarantee. Without compromising prison security, an inmate may choose many avenues for practicing religion. Regular worship, group or personal study, and pastoral counseling with the MDOC chaplains are offered throughout the inmate's time in prison. Dietary restrictions consistent with documented religious beliefs are reasonably accommodated.

Weekly worship services are available in the prison chapel for the following faiths: Roman Catholic, Protestant, Muslim, Jehovah's Witness, and Native American Sacred Circle. In addition, several Bible and Gospel study groups meet regularly.

Prison ministries play an important role in the spiritual growth of many inmates. Lay volunteers and ordained clergy represent many Maine churches and community organizations in prison programming. They promote important changes in each individual's life, by helping inmates explore spirituality and personal responsibility.

HEALTH SERVICES

MEDICAL

Access to necessary medical care is provided to all prisoners and juvenile residents in the custody of the Maine Department of Corrections (MDOC). The majority of medical care is provided on grounds at the state correctional facilities. Community-based outpatient and in-patient services are provided when it is determined that the needed care cannot be provided on-site. In these situations prisoners/residents are generally under the direct supervision of correctional staff while receiving these services in the community.

All services within the Department of Corrections are provided by qualified health care professionals such as Physicians, Physician Assistants, Nurse Practitioners, Nurses (RN and LPN), Certified Nursing Assistants, Optometrists, Dentists, Records Clerks and Health Services Administrators. Medical services are provided to prisoners/residents throughout their incarceration from admission to release. Prisoners/residents requiring health care services after release are referred to appropriate community-based services. Upon admission all prisoners/residents are medically screened followed by a comprehensive medical assessment. Medical services are available via daily sick call, scheduled appointments, and on an emergency basis. The MDOC has a limited number of Infirmary beds available in both the juvenile and adult correctional system.

The cost of providing services is primarily funded through the Correctional Medical Services Fund established by the Legislature as well as health insurance programs and the prisoners themselves via a co-pay policy established by the Department.

MENTAL HEALTH

MDOC psychologists, social workers and counselors' work closely with psychiatrists to address the mental health needs of inmates. A mental health assessment of all inmates helps classify them upon entering prison. Psychological testing, group and individual counseling and crisis intervention are available. Suicide prevention, intervention and follow-up are also important in maintaining prison safety.

Access to mental health counselors is available for all inmates wishing to address emotional concerns. A time-limited series of counseling sessions can help inmates focus on specific measurable goals for change.

For inmates diagnosed as Chronically Mentally Ill, more intensive services are available. In association with medical staff, extensive diagnostic and treatment planning, medication management, and discharge planning are provided. Attention is given to arranging aftercare support at community mental health agencies upon release from prison.

SECURE PSYCHIATRIC

The MDOC's Secure Mental Health Unit (SMU) is a self-contained program that provides psychiatric assessment and treatment for patients and inmates whose mental health needs require intensive control and supervision. Admission to the SMU occurs by authorized transfers from the prison. Through a multidisciplinary team, patients receive time-limited therapeutic services intended to enhance psychosocial functioning and skills while maintaining public safety.

OTHER SERVICES AND PRIVILEGES

A number of other services are available to provide for daily living requirements. These are accessible by inmates regardless of disciplinary status. However, some privileges may be restricted or suspended when inmates are disciplined for violating prison rules.

Attorney Visits: Allowed without restriction (with 24 hours notice in some circumstances).

Canteen: Essential products may be purchased during scheduled times; includes hygiene products, paper, pens and postage stamps. Non-essential items (e.g. snack food, television, radio) may be restricted or suspended for disciplinary reasons. Vending machines in unit for access with "debitek" cards (which are used specifically for the vending machines and replenished through the inmates account.)

Inmate Accounts: Monthly wages and money sent to inmates by family or friends are deposited and disbursed via each inmate's account. Funds are deducted for inmate purchases from the prison canteen and to replenish their "debitek" cards. Checks are disbursed monthly for pre-authorized purposes, including supporting family members, repaying restitution and other debts incurred before imprisonment, approved mail order purchases, official fees, and repair costs for authorized personal or state property. Inmates with savings accounts in any bank may be required to conduct transactions through the Inmate Accounts Office.

Inmates' Advocate: The MDOC's prison staff includes an advocate available to assist and advise inmates with complaints regarding policies and procedures, problems they might experience, and referral for legal help with civil matters. The advocate is not a defense lawyer and is not involved in criminal matters.

Laundry: Prison uniforms and bedding are washed on specific days each week.

Legal Mail: Privileged correspondence, opened by MDOC staff only in the presence of the inmate to ensure against contraband. The contents are confidential and may not be read by prison staff. This includes correspondence with the U.S. President, U.S. Vice President, U.S. Attorney General, members of Congress, federal or state courts, Governor, Executive Councilors, ME Attorney General, Commissioner of MDOC, members of the Adult Parole Board, or attorneys.

Library: A law library includes legal materials (e.g. federal and state laws, court decisions) for reference only. The recreational library includes a variety of fiction and non-fiction reading and reference materials. Access is limited to assigned schedules and may be suspended for discipline reasons. Inmates in maximum custody status can access reading materials by written request.

Mail: Non-privileged mail is opened in the prison mailroom and checked for contraband. It may be read with proper authorization for security purposes. Outgoing mail must have correct postage paid by the inmate. Packages are only accepted from approved distributors or publishers and must be prepaid. Family and friends may not send packages to inmates. Using mail to compromise security or threaten victims or others results in disciplinary or criminal action.

Marriage: Inmates and prospective spouses must attend premarital counseling with the Chaplain or designee. Approval by the Chief Administrative Officer is required and may be denied if both are inmates or if visitations are prohibited.

Meals: Provided in dining hall at assigned times (3 per day). Special diets for health or religious reasons may be requested. Meals may be provided inside the prison cell under some circumstances.

Recreation: Available to help manage and guide productive and responsible use of leisure time. Recreation opportunities are earned as inmates successfully progress through prison. During assigned times, inmates may participate in seasonal sports (in the gymnasium or prison yard), hobby craft (woodworking), and weight room. These activities must be requested in advance and may be suspended at any time. Recreation is funded through inmate paid telephone commissions and canteen profits.

Telephones: Available in all housing units. Only "collect" calls by inmates are permitted. All telephone numbers must be submitted and will be maintained on a prisoners' authorization list. Any telephone number may be blocked at the owner's request or for any inappropriate use. Incoming calls are not possible. Abuse of telephone privileges, including harassment or threats to victims or survivors, results in disciplinary action or criminal action if applicable. Victims are encouraged to notify the Warden or Victim Services Coordinator if such contact is made (see Directory).

Visitation: After the initial quarantine period, visiting privileges are permitted (weekly during a 30 day Reception Status, then at least twice weekly) unless suspended for disciplinary reasons. Visitation schedules are established based upon inmate classification level and housing assignment.

Inmates must request pre-approval of all visitors. Criminal record checks are conducted prior to approval. Persons with whom the Court has ordered no contact may not visit inmates. Children are permitted to visit only if related to the inmate and accompanied by parent, guardian or other approved adult.

Security is enforced to promote safety. To prohibit entry of contraband in the Visiting Room, all visitors are subject to search. Correctional Officers closely monitor visits and visitors may be expelled for not complying with visiting room rules. Approved deathbed visits, under close supervision by an armed Correctional Officer, may be approved for inmates to visit with family in the event of a death or life-threatening illness of an immediate family member.

IS PRISON A FREE RIDE?

The impact of crime is costly. Victims, families and communities experience the physical, emotional and economic effects of criminal behavior. When sentenced to prison, inmates pay through lost freedom and intensive structure and supervision.

To promote accountability and personal responsibility, offenders also are liable for a number of costs associated with their time in prison. These costs are regularly reviewed by the MDOC. Inmates may request deduction from their account for voluntary purchases. Through disciplinary action, up to one-half of their monthly earnings may be applied toward other costs.

Subject to specific guidelines, inmates pay for the following services and privileges:

- Canteen: all items purchased (e.g. toiletries, snack food, etc.)
- Copier: established price per page
- Cost of care: reimburse State for board and care when on work release or when otherwise ordered by court
- Hobby craft: cost of woodworking, arts and crafts supplies
- Medical & dental care: $5.00 per visit (excluding emergencies); $5.00 per missed visits
- Postage
- Restitution: reimbursement for lost/damaged prison property, medical expenses for injuries to self or others while in prison; court-ordered restitution to victims is also collected from offenders during work release, parole, or probation. All monies an inmate receives while incarcerated will have the minimum of 25% deducted and applied to their restitution obligation accordingly pursuant to 17-A subsection 1330.
- School: tuition and text books beyond high school level
- Supervision fees: for administrative home confinement, work release, electronic monitoring, parole and probation
- TV/Radio: purchase.

HOW LONG BEHIND THE WALL?

GOOD TIME

Victims, survivors and others often want to know how long an offender will be locked in prison. Factors used in determining length of time “behind the walls” include the law, the court-ordered sentence and the business of managing prisoners consistent with the MDOC mission. Good behavior in prison can reduce the length of the sentence by no more than the maximum amount allowed by law at the time of sentencing.

Length of incarceration for prisoners sentenced is calculated according to the sentencing statutes in effect at the time.

Upon an inmate’s arrival, the Offender Records office reviews the court order(s) and calculates the minimum and maximum length of incarceration consistent with the law. Any time spent incarcerated prior to the sentencing date is usually credited toward the maximum and minimum terms of the prison sentence. When ordered by the Court, the inmate may serve multiple sentences concurrently (at the same time) or consecutively (one after another). Inmates sentenced to consecutive prison terms remain incarcerated until the final sentence is served.

An inmate who is frequently disciplined or refuses to participate in prison programming may not be released at the earliest possible release date. Therefore, the length of time to be served in prison can change throughout an inmate’s stay. The longest period of time an inmate can be incarcerated is determined by the maximum term ordered by the Court. Inmates who serve the maximum time are released from MDOC jurisdiction on the last day.

SENTENCE REDUCTION

Within 30 days of sentencing, most inmates may request review of the sentence by the Law Court. A panel of judges may order a different appropriate sentence, including less time or more time in prison as permitted by law.

In addition, state law allows the prison term to be suspended by the sentencing court.

Prior to all hearings, victims of violent crimes are entitled to receive notice and to attend the court hearings. Whenever suspending a prison sentence, the Court may order specific probation conditions upon the inmate’s release. The offender may be imprisoned any time those conditions are violated.

REDUCED CUSTODY

Unless sentenced to life in prison without possibility of parole, inmates eventually leave prison. Consistent with community safety, the MDOC is committed to encouraging offenders to contribute as productive members of society. Planning an inmate’s return to the community requires evaluating behavior in prison, risk of a new crime, and reasonable opportunities for self-improvement. Gradually reducing custody levels allows offenders to experience increased freedom and responsibility while still under prison authority. Inmates may progress to housing “outside the walls.”

There are many requirements that must be met before an inmate obtains reduced custody status. With certain restrictions, inmates must be favorably classified regarding public and institutional risk, and actively participate in required programs and treatment. Reduced custody must be earned and may begin 12 to 18 months before the earliest possible release date.

The following reduced custody levels are integral steps in the progression of an offender from the strict confines of the prison toward successful integration with the community:

- Minimum Security - Housing is available on prison property outside the secure perimeter. These inmates typically work at prison facilities or on outside work crews. It allows the inmate increased responsibility while continuing an appropriate and necessary level of security.
- Work Release - The offender works in the community and resides at a Pre-Release Center. This is an opportunity for the inmate to obtain gainful employment and to become more integrated with the community.
- Supervised Community Confinement - Permits an individual to work in the community, while residing at home. A Probation-Parole Officer closely monitors the offender’s activities and the offender’s time outside the home is restricted to specified hours each day.

Successful progress through these reduced custody levels is an important consideration in decisions affecting an inmate’s release. Inmates who are not successful at reduced custody are returned “behind the walls” for an appropriate length of time, up to the maximum term.

PAROLE

The Adult Parole Board is responsible for paroling inmates. Parole is a conditional release from state prison allowing an inmate to serve the remainder of the sentence outside the prison. To be eligible, inmates must complete the minimum sentence ordered by the Court and must show increasingly responsible behavior in prison, and must have been sentenced prior to 1976.

Victims of crime are invited to provide input to the Board prior to its decision. After a hearing, the Board may release inmates when it determines there is a reasonable probability that offenders will remain at liberty without violating the law and will conduct themselves as good citizens. All persons released on parole remain in the legal custody of the Board.

The Board establishes specific conditions for the offender to remain on parole, including no contact with victims when appropriate. A Probation-Parole Officer enforces the conditions. Failure to follow those rules can result in the offender’s return to prison or other imposition of alternative punishments. Unless discharged early by the Board, an inmate's parole continues through the maximum prison term ordered by the Court.

CONCLUDING COMMENT

When offenders are sentenced to time in prison, the Maine Department of Corrections provides community safety for citizens and opportunities for inmates to achieve self-improvement. This handbook offers a comprehensive overview of the role of prisons in Maine's justice system. Each facility is different and institutional changes do occur. Consistent with safety and security needs, the MDOC is committed to keeping the public informed about our work. Our employees are available to answer your questions and address your concerns at any time.

MAINE'S PRISONS

The following MDOC prison facilities are responsible for offenders sentenced to serve more than one year in prison:

MAINE CORRECTIONAL CENTER

P.O. Box 260
Windham, ME 04082-0260
Scott Burnheimer, Superintendent
Tel: (207) 893-7000 – Fax: (207) 893-7001

Population Capacity: 598 (including 119 females)

Security Custody Level of Prisoners: Minimum, Medium, and Correctional Recovery Academy

Number of Employees: 243

The Maine Correctional Center was established by an Act of the Legislature in 1919. It was originally called the Reformatory for Men and later named the Men's Correctional Center. In 1976, the Stevens School was closed and the women were moved to the Maine Correctional Center. The Maine Correctional Center is the reception center for male prisoners with a sentence of 5 years or less.

The new Women's Unit at the Maine Correctional Center opened in July of 2002 and houses the entire adult female population committed to the department in a building that provides all of the housing and programming needs of this special segment of the prisoner population. The MCC Women's Unit staff is specially trained to work with female inmates and to work with the special needs and concerns that affect only the female inmates. The women in the unit are provided an education in nutrition and healthy diets and then given the opportunity to plan their own menus.

PROGRAMS:

MENTAL HEALTH: The Mental Health Department is comprised of licensed mental health staff that provides mental health services to the prisoner population. All prisoners receive an initial mental health screening, and where appropriate referrals to crisis intervention, individual or group counseling or psychiatry, are made.

SUBSTANCE ABUSE: Prisoners being processed at MCC are administered a substance abuse assessment at reception. AA programs are available to the general prisoner population. In addition, MCC is the site of the Correctional Recovery Academy, an intensive substance abuse treatment program that is a collaborative effort between the Office of Substance Abuse and the Department of Corrections.

SOCIAL SERVICES: The Social Services Department comprised of licensed social workers, assists prisoners beginning with the orientation process and continues through to release planning. Caseworkers work in conjunction with other institutional staff in developing and modifying individual treatment plans.

PASTORAL: A full time Chaplain & volunteer clergy provide church services, pastoral counseling and bible study classes.

INDUSTRIES: MCC has three industry programs.

Garment shop: teaches skills necessary for industrial sewing;

Upholstery shop: teaches residential and commercial upholstery;

Wood shop: teaches use of a variety of tools and equipment used in the building trades. Prisoners learn to produce items ranging from novelties to custom build products.

EDUCATION: The MCC School Department offers basic literacy instruction, GED classes, High School Diploma completion, limited English proficiency, career counseling, distance learning, computer lab, parenting classes and library services.

VOCATION: MCC offers:

Graphic Arts Program: teaches all aspects of professional printing;

Computer Technician Program: trains to refurbish computers. The rebuilt computers are then placed in schools throughout Maine; and Maine Prison Pup Program: teaches prisoners to train puppies to become service animals for the disabled. This program is offered to female prisoners housed at MCC.

RECREATION: MCC has a full-time recreation program available to prisoners. Prisoners have access to a gymnasium, outdoor ball field, weight room, ping-pong and pool tables and TV. The recreation staff also organizes individual and team competitions.

MEDICAL: A full range of medical services is available including but not limited to: medical, nursing, dental, optometry and psychiatry. When necessary, referrals are made to community providers for specialized services. The Department of Corrections Infirmary is also housed at MCC for prisoners who require that level of care.

WORK RELEASE: Prisoners may apply for community-based programs depending on eligibility. These programs consist of Work Release, Furloughs, and Supervised Community Confinement.

Public Restitution: Prisoners are assigned to work crews that perform public service in local communities.

Work Crews: Prisoners are expected to participate in treatment/educational or work programs. Participation enables prisoners to earn good time credits, which may shorten their term of incarceration. Work crews at the MCC are designed to meet institutional needs such as, kitchen and laundry duty.

Supervised Community Confinement: MCC participates in the Supervised Community Confinement Program.

OTHER:

Visit Program: A prisoner's housing determines the number and circumstances of visits.

CENTRAL MAINE PRE-RELEASE CENTER

P.O. Box 8 – 89 Winthrop Street - State House Station 160
Hallowell, ME 04347

Richard Charest, Superintendent

Tel: (207) 287-3035 – Fax: (207) 287-5746

Population Capacity: 50

Security Custody Level of Prisoners: Minimum, Community, and Substance Abuse Program

Number of Employees: 20

The Central Maine Pre-Release Center opened on the grounds of the former Stevens School in Hallowell. Prisoners housed at the Center who are assigned to work release are allowed to work in the community and pay room, board and transportation fees to the Center.

The Center also serves as the transitional treatment program for graduates of the Correctional Recovery Academy.

PROGRAMS:

MENTAL HEALTH: Services are available through the medical department on an as needed basis. PHS has a psychiatrist that comes to the facility by appointment.

SUBSTANCE ABUSE: CMPRC offers in-house Alcoholics Anonymous meetings weekly. Prisoners that have drug and/or alcohol related convictions or history are encouraged to attend the Substance abuse groups. CMPRC offers classes in Early Intervention, as well as Relapse Prevention.

Prisoners that have completed the Correctional Recovery Academy at the Maine Correctional Center are transferred to CMPRC to complete the Transitional Therapeutic Program. The TTP is an intense substance abuse treatment program that aids prisoners with issues surrounding their release from prison. This is a collaborative effort between the Office of Substance Abuse and the Department of Corrections.

PASTORAL: Passes are available to attend services at area churches on an individual basis. Pastoral visits can be scheduled through the supervisor's office.

EDUCATION: Programs are offered in conjunction with SAD. 16, Adult Ed. Some classes are on-site and some are off-site. Classes are offered in the area of self-help, skills building, and special interests. All prisoners are encouraged to take an introduction to a computer course. Prisoners in need of GED testing receive tutoring from on-site instructors.

VOCATION: CMPRC offers several vocational classes, such as small engine repair and woodworking, through the local Adult Education Program.

RECREATION: Prisoners may use the free weights, universal weight machine, stair climber, basketball, horseshoes, and volleyball.

MEDICAL: CMPRC has a nurse in the facility 16 hours per week and a doctor comes every other week for approximately 2 hours to deal with the medical needs of the prisoners. All routine medical issues are handled through the nurse/doctor. The CMPRC staff will deal with an emergency medical treatment by contacting the Correctional Medical Services on call medial person.

WORK RELEASE: Prisoners who quality for the Work Release program can work to earn money. Prisoners pay up to $50 per week room and board and pay 25% of their income towards any restitution they owe. Prisoners can find their own jobs to be approved by the Work Release Coordinator or take a job with some of the employers we already have a working relationship with.

Public Restitution: correctional personnel supervise Prisoners work crews. The work crews provide labor for various state, municipal, and non-profit organizations. The work crews consist of a painting crew, building and ground maintenance, and a general construction crew.

Supervised Community Confinement: Prisoners at CMPRC may participate in Supervised Community Confinement.

OTHER:

Visit Program: Visits are conducted 3 times per week, with each prisoner being allowed up to 2 visits per week. The visits are held on Tuesday and Thursday evenings and Sunday mornings. These are monitored visits held in the cafeteria.

MAINE STATE PRISON

807 Cushing Road
Warren, ME 04864
Jeffrey D. Merrill, Warden
Tel: (207) 273-5300 – Fax: (207) 273-5316

Population Capacity: 916

Security Custody Level of Prisoners: Special Management, Close, Medium, and Mental Health

Number of Employees: 370.5

When Maine separated from Massachusetts in 1820 provisions had to be made for a state prison. In 1823, the Legislature provided for the establishment of such an institution at Thomaston. In June 1824, the institution was ready for occupancy. Most of the old prison was destroyed by fire in September 1923 and replaced in September 1924. This correctional facility served the State of Maine up until February 2002, at which time the “new” Maine State Prison in Warren replaced the “old” Maine State Prison in Thomaston. The new Maine State Prison is a state-of-the-art correctional facility offering the highest levels of both public safety and prisoner rehabilitation programs and services.

PROGRAMS:

MENTAL HEALTH: The Mental Health Department is comprised of mental health staff that provides a full range of mental health services to the prisoner population. All prisoners receive an initial mental health screening, and where appropriate, referrals to crisis intervention, individual or group counseling, and psychiatry are made. The Mental Health Stabilization Unit is an acute care program located at the Maine State Prison and services the adult male population across the Department of Corrections.

SUBSTANCE ABUSE: Prisoners new to the Department of Corrections being processed at the Maine State Prison, Bolduc Correctional Facility, or Maine Correctional Institution are administered a substance abuse assessment at that time. A further assessment and program recommendations are provided to prisoners referred to the Substance Abuse Department at the Maine State Prison and the Bolduc Correctional Facility. Programming may include individual and group (including Relapse Prevention) counseling, education courses, and AA or NA services. The Substance Abuse Department is comprised of licensed Substance Abuse Counselors.

SOCIAL SERVICES: The Social Services Department at the Maine State Prison is comprised of licensed social workers that are assigned to work with the individual prisoners upon the prisoners' arrival. The assigned Caseworker assists the prisoner in developing and later modifying their individual treatment plan, along with any crisis intervention, as needed from the moment of arrival to the time of departure. Caseworkers also assist in-group facilitation, as liaisons for various prisoner groups and as staff coordinators for a variety of activities involving prisoner participation.

PASTORAL: The Chaplain's Office is situated at the Maine State Prison and is staffed with a full-time Protestant Chaplain and a part-time Catholic Priest. The Chaplain's Office coordinates and directs the activities of approximately 75 volunteers, provides pastoral counseling, bible studies, church services and special programs for all 3 facilities. One of the special programs is the Kyros spiritual retreat. This is an intense 3-day event that brings volunteers into the Maine State Prison to work closely with a small group of prisoners. The Chaplain's Office also provides space and assistance to those who adhere to religious practices that are outside of the mainstream.

Activities:	Christian Fellowship Services	Catholic Mass	Muslim Prayer Group
	Yokefellows Groups	Seventh Day Adventist Bible Study
	Christian Prayer Groups	Wiccan Study Group

INDUSTRIES:

Wood Shop: Wood products, from cutting boards to bureaus and hutches are handcrafted by prisoners working in the Maine State Prison Wood Shop. Finishing of the products is done by prisoners working in the Finishing Shop. These work areas provide prisoners with a means of learning work ethics, marketable job skills and entry into the job market upon release. Products are sold through the Prison Showroom with money's used to support industries and craft programs, which involve approximately 240 prisoners.

Print Shop: The Maine State Prison Print Shop is a full-service shop offering typesetting, design layout, printing, and a variety of finishing options, including a complete bindery. The shop has offset and letter presses and specializes in carbonless forms, business cards, brochures, pads of custom-designed paper, raffle tickets, and greeting cards. The Print Shop also does sign engraving and engraving on plastic or brass.

Upholstery Shop: The Maine State Prison Upholstery Shop offers furniture repair, refinishing, and upholstery with experience in repairing and refinishing items from the finest antiques to office furniture. Chair caning and rush roping are also done in the Upholstery Shop. Prisoners work on all types of furniture, from the smallest chairs to the largest sofas, along with car, truck, and boat seats.

EDUCATION: The Maine State Prison offers literacy/remedial reading with individual instruction by the prison teacher or literacy volunteers. GED preparation is offered either on computer or through the prison teacher. A prisoner tutor, under the direction of the teacher, is available to those who do not go to the education area. Typing, bookkeeping, computer instruction, and college programs over ITV are available. Special programs such as art, creative writing, music, literature, and languages are offered, depending on prisoner interest.

VOCATION:

Craft Room: The Maine State Prison Craft Room Program provides an opportunity for prisoners to work on wood novelties during their recreation time. Each program participant must first complete a safety-training course, where they are taught the safety basics of all machinery. All novelties must gain approval of the Craft Room Committee. Once the novelty is approved, prisoners may produce the novelty items for sale in the Prison Showroom.

RECREATION: MSP has a variety of recreation programs available to prisoners. Prisoners have access to a gymnasium, outdoor ball field, weight room, pool tables, etc. The recreation staff also organize individual and team competitions.

MEDICAL: A full range of medical services is available including but not limited to: medical, nursing, dental, optometry and psychiatry. When necessary, referrals are made to community providers for specialized services.

OTHER: MSP has a visitors program. The frequency, circumstances and the duration of the visits depend on the prisoners housing and behavior.

The Bolduc Correctional Facility was built in the early 1930's as a farm barracks for the Maine State Prison. Known then as the "Prison Farm", this facility grew to be one of the largest dairy and beef farms in Maine.

PROGRAMS:

MENTAL HEALTH: The Mental Health Department is comprised of mental health staff that provides a full range of mental health services to the prisoner population. All prisoners receive an initial mental health screening, and where appropriate, referrals to crisis intervention, individual or group counseling, and psychiatry are made.

SUBSTANCE ABUSE: Prisoners new to the Department of Corrections being processed at the Maine State Prison, Bolduc Correctional Facility, or Maine Correctional Institution are administered a substance abuse assessment at that time. A further assessment and program recommendations are provided to prisoners referred to the Substance Abuse Department at the Maine State Prison and the Bolduc Correctional Facility. Programming may include individual and group (including Relapse Prevention) counseling, education courses, and AA or NA services. The Substance Abuse Department is comprised of licensed Substance Abuse Counselors.

SOCIAL SERVICES: The Social Services Department at the Maine State Prison is comprised of licensed social workers that are assigned to work with the individual prisoners upon the prisoners' arrival. INDUSTRIES:

Farm Program: From a small one-acre plot in 1980 to nearly 100 acres of crops under cultivation, the Bolduc Correctional Farm Program has developed into a major supplier of produce for DOC facilities.

The farm is in its 12th year of operation and serves as a major contributor and cost savings program to the Department of Corrections. Our current three-year agricultural plan is proceeding as expected and as of the end of the 1999-growing season, we have three major crops in rotation, i.e. potatoes, dried beans and hay. These crops effectively compliment each other and provide for healthier soils.

This past year also witnessed the construction of a new ninety-foot greenhouse. The ultimate goal will be the construction of a third unit and the implementation of a year-round vegetable program. In addition, flowers could be grown to enhance the appearance of State buildings in all areas.

The livestock (beef) program has been reduced to only a dozen head, but will be sufficient enough to support our Culinary Arts Program.

A significant addition to the farm program was the drilling of a well that has the capacity of replenishing our water storage ponds. This function in conjunction with our irrigation system should be able to provide the water necessary to enhance production.

Plate Shop: The Bolduc Correctional Facility in conjunction with the Secretary of State's Office operates the state's license plate program. In 1998 we employed 32 inmates for approximately 21,000 hours. That year also saw the installation of new equipment at a cost of $250,000. Quality and capacity have been enhanced with this new equipment.

EDUCATION: All Bolduc Correctional Facility inmates are encouraged to pursue educational goals and use the resources of the Education Department. Classification refers everyone interested in programs as well as everyone who is not a high school graduate for needs assessment and placement. Programs include:

- Literacy: Work one-on-one with literacy volunteers to improve reading skills.
- Adult Basic Ed: Skill building in math, reading, writing
- GED: Preparation and testing for the high school equivalency diploma.
- Vocational Backup: Work on specific skills needed in a vocational program.
- Counseling: Vocational and educational planning; life skills workshops; pre-release preparation.
- Computer Study: Basic training in Windows 95, advanced training, and independent computer tile available to those who complete basic.

- College: Televised courses through the Education Network of Maine; tuition costs shared by the student and the Inmate Benefit Fund.

The Education Department manages the Library and facilitates group activities like the BCF Newsletter, chess club and stock market game. It also sponsors special programs provided by volunteers and groups from the outside, including:

- The Alternatives to Violence Program (AVP) has put on 3-day workshops on conflict resolution for the past two years.
- New Books, New Readers, a project of the Maine Humanities Council, focuses on the rewards of reading in workshop series for readers at all levels.
- Mindfulness Meditation meets biweekly with volunteers from the community.
- AIDS Awareness educational programs presented by the Waldo-Know AIDS Coalition; the basic program is provided to all new inmates and all furlough program participants.
- Impact of Crime is an educational program that explores the effects of crimes on victim families and communities.
- Veterans Affairs Assistance

VOCATION: Six vocational programs offer inmates the chance to learn or improve marketable job skills:

Building Trades: Consists of practical experience in construction projects for the institution and sometimes in the local community. It usually covers rough framing, roofing and siding, drywall, interior and exterior finish work.

Culinary Arts: Trainees may graduate as Assistant Cook or Cook II, depending on how well they do in the program. The course covers all phases of food preparation, including extensive training in the bakeshop. Graduates have landed good jobs in restaurants and institutions.

Auto Body Repair: Provides experience in all aspects of body repair and refinishing; each trainee will spray-paint at least one entire vehicle before graduation. The instructor offers a session on custom work for students who have done especially well in the regular program.

Auto Mechanics: Focuses on engine work, from tune-ups to overhauls, and maintenance work including alignment. Modern equipment includes an electronic analyzer and an all-wheel alignment machine.

Plumbing and Heating: Trainees are licensed as helpers so that their hours in the program will count toward journeyman license requirements. Practical experience includes heating and plumbing system maintenance and repair as well as new installations.

Electrical Trades: Trainees are licensed as helpers and may take the journeyman exam after successful completion of the program. Theory and code are studied in the classroom. Since the course takes 12 months, openings are limited and only inmates with a strong interest in an electrical carrier are encouraged to enroll.

Except for electrical trades, each program takes six months to complete. Each combines classroom study and hands-on work, and is taught by a certified instructor who is a professional in his field. Prior experience is not required.

RECREATION: BCF has many recreation programs available to prisoners. Prisoners have access to a gymnasium, outdoor ball field, weight room, pool tables, etc. Recreation staff also organizes individual and team competitions.

MEDICAL: A full range of medical services is available including but not limited to: medical, nursing, dental, optometry and psychiatry. When necessary, referrals are made to community providers for specialized services.

WORK RELEASE: The Bolduc Correctional Facility offers 8-10 openings for Local Area Work Release opportunities for eligible prisoners.

OTHER:

Visits Program: BCF has a visitors program. The frequency, circumstances and the duration of the visits depend on the prisoners housing and behavior.

CHARLESTON CORRECTIONAL FACILITY

1202 Dover Road
Charleston, ME 04422
Stephen Berry, Director
Tel: (207) 285-0800 – Fax: (207) 285-0825

Population Capacity: 75

Number of Employees: 32

The Charleston Correctional Facility, located at the former Charleston Air Force Base, was established in December of 1980 for the vocational and educational training of minimum-security inmates. Prisoners participate in work projects, including public restitution to local communities and forestry management of surrounding areas.

PROGRAMS:

GENERAL: Through the Classification process, recommendations regarding work programs and treatment, to include a review of substance abuse history with recommendations for AA attendance and individual counseling, and educational programs are reviewed on an individual basis. Prisoners are classified within one week.

MENTAL HEALTH:

Correctional casework is provided by two full-time Licensed Social Workers (LSW) who provide case management services with each prisoner for intake assessment, counseling for prisoners regarding marital and family problems, legal issues and social institutional adjustment development and coordination of individual treatment plans, evaluation of prisoners and coordination of specialized programs and services with other correctional treatment staff and outside social service agencies, and assist the prisoners with discharge planning. They also develop, implement and/or facilitate groups for the prisoners.

Individual and group therapy are provided eight hours per week by the contracted services of a Licensed Clinical Social Worker (LCSW). A comprehensive twelve-week behavior oriented Anger Management Group is provided three times each year. Each group instructs eight to ten prisoners on how to recognize their feelings, learn their causes, and deal with them in a responsible way. An average of 40-50 prisoners per year participate in this program.

Psychological therapy and evaluation services are provided eight hours per week through a contracted Psychologist. These services allow approximately seven prisoners per week to receive individual counseling as well as very limited sex-offender counseling. An average of 40-50 prisoners participate per year.

SUBSTANCE ABUSE: Substance abuse counseling is available through 16 hours of contracted substance abuse services that provides both individual and group counseling as well as self-help services. AA meetings are provided weekly. The substance abuse counselor, in conjunction with various correctional treatment staff, provides weekly cognitive reconstructing groups through Free Your Mind and House of Healing groups that serve about ten prisoners each. In addition, he facilitates a Living Sober group each week for seven prisoners. Attendance for Anger Management is about 24 participants per year; Free your Mind and Living Sober, about 50-60 participants per year. Houses of Health, about 30 participants per year.

PASTORAL: Pastoral services are provided through various members of the community. On Sunday afternoons, a non-denominational service is provided through contracted chaplain services. Sunday evening services, also non-denominational, are provided by lay people from a church in the area. Monday afternoons, a local priest provides Catholic services and another person provides services for Jehovah Witnesses. On Monday evenings the CCF Chaplain and a staff member from the juvenile facility provide a Bible Stud. At any given time approximately 20-40 prisoners participate in one or more of the offered pastoral activities.

INDUSTRIES: The Industries Program consists of Commercial Wood Harvesting and Lumber Production in which prisoners are paid nominal wages after receiving training. The value added products, logs, and lumber produced at Charleston Correctional Facility are available to other state agencies at below market costs to reduce expenses of their programs/needs. In addition to the male oriented Wood Harvesting and Lumber Production Industry Program, there are two separate Industry Programs, one of which employs male prisoners to make products from the lumber, and other employing women. This training assists prisoners in their rehabilitation, gives them a gainful occupation while incarcerated, and allows them to earn $0.40-$1.00 per hour. As in the Wood Harvesting Program, they are required to pay victim restitution from their earnings. The Industries Program is comprised of 19 prisoners.

EDUCATION:

Adult Basic Education (i.e. a Wilson Reading Program) and GED preparation and testing are provided by one full-time teacher. Instruction is individualized to the particular prisoner. The instructor provides refreshers for Math, Reading, and Language; makes information available for Commercial River's Licenses; teaches basic Spanish and English as a second language. Co-facilitates a Parenting Group with Penquis Community Action Program's Family Enrichment Services, and serves as Coordinator for the Library, which provides recreational reading materials and a variety of audio and video materials for prisoners. Over 150 prisoners participate each year, with 10 completing the GED's this past year.

Basic Computer Skills: instruction is provided by another full-time teacher. This program includes Applied Keyboarding, Windows 95-98, and Microsoft Office. Within the Microsoft Office material, skills are learned in word processing, use of spreadsheets, and how to set up and use a database. Other individual projects are implemented as deemed appropriate. A Career Development Class has been revised and will have ongoing sessions available.

VOCATION: The Wood Harvesting Program is a vocational program which is divided into three categories: 1) In Basic Wood Harvesting students are taught wood harvesting and forestry practices, including: chain saw use, yarding techniques, harvesting techniques, silviculture, forestry practices, conservation and management. Students completing the Basic Program are encouraged to participate in the advanced programs; 2) Commercial Wood Harvesting focuses on building upon the basic program; and 3) Lumber-Production is administered by Correctional Trades Instructors, who teach students through hands-on experience the methods and techniques of lumber production, techniques in maximizing yield, inventory, shrinkage control, handling for storage/drying, kiln drying processes, etc.

All four instructors in the Wood Harvesting program have attained their Certified Logging Professional Certificates. While neither of the two advanced training programs will issue certificates to the prisoners, the work experience can be applied towards the Certified Logging Professional License. In addition, prisoners participating in paid status are required to pay victim restitution, and may be required to pay for living expenses at prorated costs. Over 40 prisoners have participated each year, with an average of 10-12 prisoners in vocational student status.

RECREATION: Charleston Correctional Facility provides a full gymnasium, equipped with various training equipment and recreational sports equipment and games. All prisoners are able to exercise 3-4 times each week.

MEDICAL: A full range of medical services is available to prisoners at CCF, including but not limited to: medical, nursing, dental, optometry and psychiatry. When necessary, referrals are made to community providers for specialized services. For more intensive medical care, prisoners are transferred to the infirmary at the Maine Correctional Center.

WORK RELEASE:

Public Restitution: Charleston Correctional has a very aggressive prisoner public restitution program. Local towns, churches, schools, nonprofit organizations, and other public agencies benefit from the opportunity of prisoners willing to provide many hours of labor for restitution work. CCF prisoners also do bridge maintenance work for the Department of Transportation. This public restitution program has for years saved the Maine taxpayers many thousands of dollars that would have been required to do the necessary construction and repairs to public buildings and areas. Prisoners are rewarded with a sense of pride and satisfaction of accomplishment in paying something back to society.

Work Crews: Through the Classification process, recommendations regarding work programs are reviewed on an individual basis. Prisoners are assigned to various job assignments throughout the institution. These positions include proper training and instruction in areas of general maintenance, grounds work, carpentry, electrical, plumbing and welding, motor vehicle maintenance and repair; general cleaning, kitchen and food preparation; warehouse/supply maintenance and issues, steam plant and waste water treatment plant operations, and industries woodshop and crafts production.

Pre-Release: Furlough Programs enable those close to release an opportunity to progressively interact back into their families and community life.

Supervised Community Confinement (SCC): CCF participates in the Supervised Community Confinement Program. Under SCC prisoners are released to the community to complete their sentence, supervised by personnel from Probation and Parole. Prisoners must apply to be accepted into the program and eligible guidelines are strictly enforced.

OTHER:

Forest Fire Fighting training programs: enables many prisoners to earn extra money while incarcerated and serves as a labor force for the Maine Warden's Services to a vast area should forest a fire disaster occur.

Advocacy: Advocacy Services are available to prisoners who are referred to a Chief Advocate who comes to the facility approximately once each month.

Work Trade Off: When down to 14 months prior to release, prisoners may apply for work trade off at the pre-release center and Work Release: when they are down to 7 months, thereby enabling them to earn money and pay restitution owed before their release.

The Downeast Correctional Facility, located at the former Bucks Harbor Air Force Station, was established in the early fall of 1984. Funds were appropriated to purchase and renovate and make the former Air Force Station operational as a correctional facility. Downeast began receiving inmates in 1985.

PROGRAMS:

GENERAL: Prisoners who meet the eligibility requirements and are recommended by the facility Classification Committee may access work release programs and the Central Maine Pre-Release facility provided they are accepted by the work release facility they are requesting. At Pre-Release, prisoners may work in the community for pay to help them prepare for a successful reentry into the community upon release.

SUBSTANCE ABUSE: Prisoners are encouraged to participate in substance abuse counseling programs if there is a history of substance abuse problems. Substance abuse counseling is available through contracted services. Presently offered are: the education group, therapy group and one-on-one individual counseling.

COUNSELING SERVICES

Sex Offender: The facility does not have a sex offender treatment program. There is a sex offender education group conducted on a weekly basis that deals primarily with denial. Arrangements can be made for individual sex offender counseling on a limited basis, however, the services offered in this area do not come close to meeting the requirements of an effective sex offender treatment program.

Behavioral Health/Psychological: The facility provides group counseling such as anger management, decision-making skills, emotional awareness, etc. Individual psychological counseling is available on a limited basis.

Life Skills: The facility school department offers a program that teaches life skills to those prisoners who request to participate and are involved in a vocational program. This program includes but is not limited to areas such as self-development, communication skills, job and financial skills development, education, interpersonal and family relationship development, stress and anger management.

Religious Counseling Services: These services are provided through the facility Chaplain and volunteers. Bible study, church services and Yokefellow meetings are provided on a weekly basis. Arrangements can be made for individual religious counseling INDUSTRIES: Although not available at this time, the facility is in the process of developing and implementing a program that will allow some prisoners assigned to the Motor Pool and the Auto Restoration and Reconditioning Program to earn money for their participation in the program. Plans are also in progress to develop another industry program that will provide an opportunity for prisoners to earn money.

EDUCATION:

Adult Basic Education, GED, ECO (External Credit Option), Life Skills, Job Seeking Skills, Evaluation and Guidance Counseling, Introduction to use of computers. All prisoners are encouraged to pursue educational goals and use the resources of our School Department and Library. The Classification Committee makes recommendations to the prisoners in regards to educational programs and the prisoners may access the programs by written request to the School Department. One of the staff at our School Department interviews each individual prisoner upon arrival at DCF so as to determine educational needs and to assist the prisoner in setting some educational goals.

Literacy: Prisoners are provided the opportunity to work one-on-one with a teacher or an educational volunteer to improve reading and writing skills.

Adult Basic Education: Skill building in math, reading, writing, etc.; GED preparation and testing for the High School Equivalency Diploma; ECO External credit option – obtaining a High School Diploma.

Vocational Backup: Work on specific skills needed in vocational programs.

Counseling: Vocational and Educational planning, Life Skills, Pre-Release preparation.

Introduction to Use of Computers: The School Department offers a program that introduces students to the basic use of computers. Staff at the School Department may assist prisoners in accessing college credit correspondence courses.

Library: Prisoners are provided services of a recreational reading and law library.

VOCATION:

Building Trades: The Building Trades/Carpentry program is a vocational program which covers all aspects of the building trade through classroom training combined with practical experience gained through projects completed for the facility, staff, local communities and other state agencies.

Auto Restoration and Reconditioning: This program is designed to teach the basics of the trade by receiving instruction from an individual experienced in this field and participating in projects completed for staff and the facility.

Welding Trades: The Welding Trades program is a six months vocational program designed to teach students welding applications and metal fabrication through classroom training combined with practical experience gained through projects completed for the facility, staff, local communities and other state agencies.

Upholstery Trades: This is a six months vocational program that teaches all aspects of the Upholstery Trade through the use of textbooks, classroom training and hands-on projects completed for the facility staff, local communities and other state agencies.

RECREATION:

MEDICAL: Medical services are provided by a contract with Prison Health Services. The Medical Department is open and staffed by a nurse 12 hours each ay. Physician services are regularly provided on a weekly basis. Other medical needs requiring attention of a physician are met at the emergency room of the Downeast Community Hospital. The Medical Department also provides psychiatric services on a limited basis.

WORK RELEASE:

Public Restitution: DCF is very active in providing services to local communities, municipalities, state agencies, schools, and nonprofit groups. These services range from building construction, building maintenance, carpentry, welding projects, to sign-making and grounds maintenance projects. Although there is usually a waiting list, we will take on just about any type of project. Each summer we provide a prisoner work crew for the Department of Transportation's Bridge Maintenance Division. Prisoners who have attained minimum custody may request to participate in our Community Restitution projects. The facility has a Prison Puppy Program in partnership with NEADS (National Education for Assistance God Services). Prisoners are carefully chosen to be responsible for the care and training of each of these puppies. Under the supervision of Officer Clara Grover, these prisoners provide basic obedience training for the puppies and are responsible for the care and grooming of the puppies. Officer Grover is an experienced dog trainer who operates her own kennel and raises and trains show dogs. After the basic obedience training is provided at DCF, the dogs go to the NEADS facility in W. Boylston, MA, where they are given advanced training to prepare them to work as an assisted living dog for someone in the community.

Work Crews: Prisoners, who meet the eligibility requirements and are recommended by the facility Classification Committee may access work release programs at CMPRC, provided they are accepted by the work release facility they are requesting. At the Pre-Release, prisoners may work in the community for pay to help them prepare for a successful reentry into the community upon release.

OTHER:

Pre-Release: Furlough Programs enable those close to release an opportunity to progressively interact back into their families and community life.

Forest Fire Fighting training programs: The Maine Forest Service provided a training program at the facility to teach prisoners how to be effective in fighting forest fires. The facility develops three teams of minimum custody prisoners who have participated in this training. These teams of trained fire fighters are often called upon by the Maine Forest Service to assist in extinguishing forest fires throughout the state. Prisoners who participate in fighting forest fires are compensated for their services by the State of Maine.

Furloughs: Furloughs may be requested by prisoners who meet the eligibility criteria. The furlough requests will be processed according to Department Policy and Procedures. Furlough passes are not processed at DCF.
